PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Board agrees to settle with Wilson

FOR COMPTON'S CENTENNIAL— Francis Ege, District 2, member of the Lee County Board, Tuesday offered a resolution, which was accepted by the board meeting, taking note of Compton's Centennial Celebration to be held July 9-13. Ege, right, was gaily dressed in bygone styles and sported a pork chop beard which he has grown as part of the Brothers of the Brush in commemoration of the coming celebration. By ROBERT H. NELLIS

On a 15 to 8 vote the Lee County Board Tuesday agreed to pay Lowell L. Wilson $422.65 if he would furnish the county clear deeds for the six lots located in a parcel of land at 2000 W. Fourth St., where the county highway building stands.

The six lots were not deeded to the county when it purchased the building late in 1972 and the omission came to light two months ago when they were sold at a tax sale for nonpayment of taxes.

The county redeemed the six lots by a payment of $1,232.52 and Wilson has held them hostage, demanding the county pay him $1,655.17 which was deducted from a time and material contract to remodel the building for use by the highway department.

The difference between the two amounts is $422.65, which Wilson has said he would accept and would convey the deeds to the county.

On May 24 a mortgage was filed against the six lots for a three-year period with no specified amount.

As things began to unfold Tuesday, it became apparent County Board Chairman Irvin Koch, District 2, knew Wilson would be quite willing to clear the titles of the deeds if the county would agree to the settlement.

August H. Frazza, District 4, brought up the issue which has caused some heated exchanges among board members, declaring "It's time to bring a conclusion to the highway building."

"Two mistakes do not make a right and I move we pay the $422.65 to Wilson."

"Unforgivable errors may have been committed, but it's time to forgive and forget."

William Rogers, District 3, interjected, "Last month we directed the state's attorney to take steps to get this property and we should know what has happened."

Warren Faber, District 2, echoed Rogers' call for a report from the state's attorney, charging "It's foolish to issue a directive and vote here not knowing what went on."

Koch said he did not know what the state's attorney has done and on May 30 he learned about the mortgage on the six lots.

James P. Green, District 4, joined the chant for a report on what the state's attorney has done about the directive issued May 13. "We need to get a report before we act. As board members we have a privilege to receive information about what we directed last month," he asserted.

Faber exasperatedly exclaimed "Are we to give $400 to settle for property which has a mortgage?"

Koch intervened and mysteriously said "The person who makes the motion will know."

Bernard Sexton, District 4, insisted to know why the state's attorney has not acted.

Frazza exclaimed "He's got three assistants; we should get one of them to answer the question," and exited to go to the prosecutor's office.

While he was gone, Ernest Norden, District 1, acting chairman of the Finance Committee, revealed "I have been told if the county pays the $422.65, the mortgage will be released and the deeds will be turned over."

Green demanded "We paid taxes which we were not obliged to do, what about getting that money back?"

J. Herbert Henning, District 3, bitterly stated, "The county was ripped-off; the real estate contract said Wilson would pay the 1973 taxes, but he did not. The building is located on the property but all of the land was not conveyed to the county."

"I am not going to be a party to pay this kind of blackmail with taxpayers' money."

Donald F. Burke charged "The Executive Committee was asked to redeem the property, nobody directed them to redeem taxes on property which the county did not own."

Frazza, who had returned by this time, announced "The assistant state's attorney does not know what has happened."

Then Sexton arose and made a motion to table Frazza's motion.

After considerable discussion and agreement that a tabling motion took precedence over an existing motion, Koch said, "I'm on another subject," and ruled Sexton's motion out of order.

This brought a flurry of protest, but Koch gavelled the meeting back to order and snapped "We were discussing committee reports when Sexton made his motion."

All pleas denying Koch's statement fell on deaf ears of the chairman.

He went on to call up various committee reports.

Later Sexton again brought up the Wilson issue, recalling that Norden had indicated he talked to Wilson's attorney and was assured the deeds would be conveyed if the money was paid, and observed "The county disagreed with charges for work done and the county bought property they now are jockeying around."

"These are two separate issues and we should not be pushed around to settle," and then he made a second motion to table the matter, which the chairman accepted.

Before the vote was called Frazza charged the Road and Bridge Committee in 1972, when the property was purchased, had ducked taking blame for not noticing the county did not get all the land it should from the transaction and is blaming the state's attorney.

"It's a happenstance and a fair mistake," continued Frazza.

This brought Henning to his feet, exclaiming "As a Road and Bridge Committee member, I remember Frazza and Topper and Wilson signed the real estate contract which none of the rest of the committee saw."

"You (Frazza) saw the lots listed on top of the document, not me," snapped Henning.

He continued, "The committee did not act on this, which was a mistake, and the Road and Bridge committee members never saw the contract which listed six lots, but Frazza did."

"We (committee members) did not have any idea they were going to sign the contract."

The tabling motion was called and lost 9 to 13 and then the Frazza motion was approved 15 to 8.

Edward Conroy, District 3, complained, "I am offend-

Barber appointed by SVC Board

By CONNI DETTMAN

Two new positions were created and an appointment was made to fill one of the new posts by members of the Sauk Valley College Board of Trustees Monday night.

James Barber was appointed as Assistant Dean of Adult and Continuing Education. Dr. George Cole, president of Sauk Valley College cited several advantages to the position when recommending Barber to the post. Cole said with this appointment "we could reassure everyone that there will be at least one administrator in the building in the evening when evening instruction is taking place."

In a memorandum to the board, Cole added the North Central report suggested the college "had not been providing enough administrative direction for evening programs and it was the opinion that a course of action in this direction would be desirable."

Another advantage cited by Cole in the memorandum would allow programs to be reclassified into vocational certificate programs. The addition of this post would also provide evening counseling services, keep the registrar's office open, expand operational hours of the library and provide coordination and direction by a member of the administration.

Before members of the board voted, Cole also recommended a $500 salary increase for Barber if appointed to the post. He said the salary increase was compensation for the added responsibility, extra duties and odd hours.

A first motion to approve the post and Barber's appointment without the salary increase died for a lack of a second. A second motion including the salary boost was passed on a 5-1 vote, with trustee Robert Wolfe casting the only no vote. Wolfe was the initiator of the first motion opposing the salary boost.

Board members later created the post of Human Services-Public Services Program Coordinator. No appointment was made to fill the position.

Salary increases were approved for the college president, administration and clerical and maintenance staff.

An overall eight per cent salary hike was approved for clerical and maintenance staff. The blanket increase for the staff totals approximately $32,080 and will be distributed by heads of the respective departments.

An overall 5.51 per cent increase was approved for the administrative staff. The total for the administration salary increase was $320,190.

Board members also set Dr. Cole's salary after granting a three-year contract for Cole. Cole, who is presently completing the second year of a three-year contract, will receive a salary of $33,000. Cole presently receives a $31,500 salary.

Coaching salaries were also approved by members of the board.

Board members discussed a possible tuition increase of $1 per credit hour. Cole said an increase in the tuition would help offset a state income loss of somewhere between $50,000 and $75,000. Action on the tuition was tabled for further study.

An open-end contract with Servomation which will include price increases was approved by the board. Servomation, who provides the hot lunch program at the college, asked for increases on potato chips, pastry and cold beverages.

The board voted to go ahead with the advertisement of bids on the holding pond at the college. The board has not received final approval on funds from the Capital Development Board but voted approval for bids with funds coming from the site and construction fund.

In other action, the board voted to get alternate bids on repairs of the main road at Sauk Valley College. Two estimates of $25,000 had been quoted for a layer of bituminous hot-mix for road repairs.

Lots of questions, few answers on landfill

By FRANCES MacKINNON

AMBOY— There were questions, questions and more questions, but few solid answers for the 100 persons who attended a public meeting, held in the city hall Monday night, on proposed variance to allow the dumping of "hazardous materials" at the Dixon Landfill site operated by the Rock River Sanitation Inc.

Mayor Kenneth McCracken had called the meeting to give area residents an opportunity to learn what the proposed variance would permit, what types of material would be dumped at the site and how it would be handled.

Marvin Van Weelden, owner of the Rock River Sanitation and operator of the landfill site under a lease arrangement with the City of Dixon, told the questioners that he did not know just what type of hazardous material would be dumped at the landfill site, but that it would be liquid industrial wastes from industries of this area. He didn't define what he meant by this area, but did disclose that solid wastes and refuse from Whiteside County, Lanark, Shannon, Forreston and Rockford now are being hauled to the dump, as well as from the local area.

Most of the questions directed to Van Weelden were from residents and land owners in the immediate area as well as from Ken Spitz, fire chief, and Gary Carlson, chairman of the Environmental Protection Committee of Lee County.

Dixon Mayor William Naylor and Dixon Commissioner Walter Lohse, Francis Bangston, Lee County zoning officer, and Robert A. Wengrow, Environmental Protection Associate of Aurora also were present and offered comments to clarify various points in the operation of the landfill. Wengrow stated that a variance issued in April 1973 did permit the dumping of solid paint waste at the landfill.

In conclusion Van Weelden outlined how the hazardous materials would be disposed of: "It would be brought to the site in steel drums loaded on wooden pallets, these would be lifted into a five-foot wide trench by caterpillar tractor, then covered with two feet of clay and then other garbage dumped on top of it and covered."

Lohse also addressed the group and stated that the Dixon City Council would take ample time to consider the issuing of the variance to permit dumping of hazardous material and that he was sure no action would be taken which would be harmful to area residents.

Seven attorneys, including Lee County State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward, will compete for an associate judgeship in Carroll County, according to Roy O. Guley, state court administrator.

The vacancy will be filled by secret ballot, with judges in the 15th Judicial Circuit voting on a replacement for James M. Thorp, ousted by circuit judges within the Circuit.

The names which were released include: Ward; Peter J. Woods, Ogle County state's attorney; Judge Thorp; Lawrence Bruckner, Dixon, Eric S. DeMar, former circuit judge in JoDaviess County; Lawrence A. Smith Jr., Savanna, and George A. Koehler, Freeport.

The position will be decided June 20, after votes are tabulated.

The new judge is scheduled to assume the position on July 1.

Deferred prosecution program approved

OREGON— A deferred prosecution program which will affect certain first-time offenders in the court system was approved Monday by the Ogle County Board.

Although not formally approved by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, a grant was expected to provide $25,000 in seed money to set up the program.

Each successive year the grant will be reduced by 25 per cent, according to Gene Smith, director of the Northwest Illinois Criminal Justice Commission.

Board members approved a $1,200 expenditure for the county share of the program.

Smith said the deferred prosecution plan has been successful in other areas of the state and at the same time reduces costs. Under the program, certain first-time offenders would be placed on a contract with the state's attorney's office for a specified length of time. If requirements of the contract are met, the case is disposed of without going to court.

State's Atty. Peter Woods said he favored such a plan to alleviate the high case load both in the area of felony and misdemeanor offenses.

The board approved the hiring of a full-time assistant in the public defender's office at a monthly salary of $900. Public Defender Steven Helfer requested the board hire an assistant after Bruce Wellman resigned his part-time post in Helfer's office.

The board delayed action on a request from Rock Valley Cablevision, Rockford, to provide cable television service to residents. Board Chairman Charles Finch, Mt. Morris, referred the matter to committee to get specific requirements on cost increases once the firm is in operation. Members felt the county board should have the right to approve or deny any rate increases sought by the firm.

After lengthy discussion, the board approved new restrictions for Weld Park, near Stillman Valley. The only county-owned park was taken over after Stillman Valley residents opted not to maintain the grounds. New hours approved are from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m. No alcoholic liquor will be allowed and camping privileges will be by board approval only.

Gov. Walker says state is on verge of financial crisis

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ

Associated Press Writer SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—

Declaring that Illinois is on the verge of a financial crisis because of the recession, Gov. Daniel Walker has scheduled a major address on Wednesday before the General Assembly.

In a sudden flurry of related announcements Monday, Walker and other state officials indicated that the monetary picture for state government was far from bright.

Comptroller George Lindberg put it most bluntly, telling newsmen the state would either have to raise taxes or cut state services sharply by July 1976.

Walker asked for live broadcast of his speech, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. He said such a request was unprecedented, but necessary because "the public is entitled to know all the facts on a critical governmental situation."

The governor's office declined further comment about the nature of the crisis or the content of his speech.

However, Walker has repeatedly vowed not to seek a tax increase, and fiscal experts have said he has only two other options: reduce spending or borrow money.

Lindberg, a Republican and a frequent critic of the Walker administration, urged the General Assembly to chop every ounce of fat from the spending requests now before it.

"The state's financial position is becoming precarious," said Lindberg, who warned that despite near-record tax collections money for such things as school aid and welfare payments was likely to be exhausted by June of 1976.

"At that point, the taxpayers of Illinois may be hit with either a tax hike or cuts in state services," the comptroller said. Two top-ranking Democratic senators also issued a gloomy statement about the government's financial situation.

Senate President Cecil A. Partee and Thomas C. Hynes, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said they questioned whether the revenue estimates made by Walker when he proposed his record $10.75 billion fiscal 1976 budget in March were "sound and credible."

"We will not participate in any action which will trigger a tax increase or plunge the state into unreasonable indebtedness," said the two Chicago Democrats. "We shall necessarily have to take hard-nosed action on every single budget item that comes to us in the weeks remaining in this legislative session."

Walker's fiscal 1976 budget proposal was criticized from the beginning — primarily for two reasons:

— It contained a massive, multi-billion dollar spending plan to boost the state's economy by rapid construction of an improvements to highways, airports and buildings. This "Accelerated Building Program" was to have been financed through long-term borrowing, but many objected to incurring such indebtedness for projects which in some cases were temporary in nature.

It called for exhausting the General Revenue Fund. Walker contended that this money, saved for a "rainy day," was now urgently needed. But others objected to a budget so precariously balanced, saying lower tax revenues or higher spending than expected could produce a flood of red ink.

The Accelerated Building Program was voted down, bill-by-bill, in the Senate.

Walker contended that by refusing to authorize the borrowing he had requested, the General Assembly had jeopardized the state's normal construction program, as well as the extra projects he had recommended to boost the economy. Partee and Hynes, however, criticized Walker for not proposing a substitute construction program and said they would come up with one of their own.

One problem with that is that unless the money for construction is borrowed, much of it would have to come out of the General Revenue Fund, and this could upset Walker's careful budget balance unless spending is cut elsewhere.

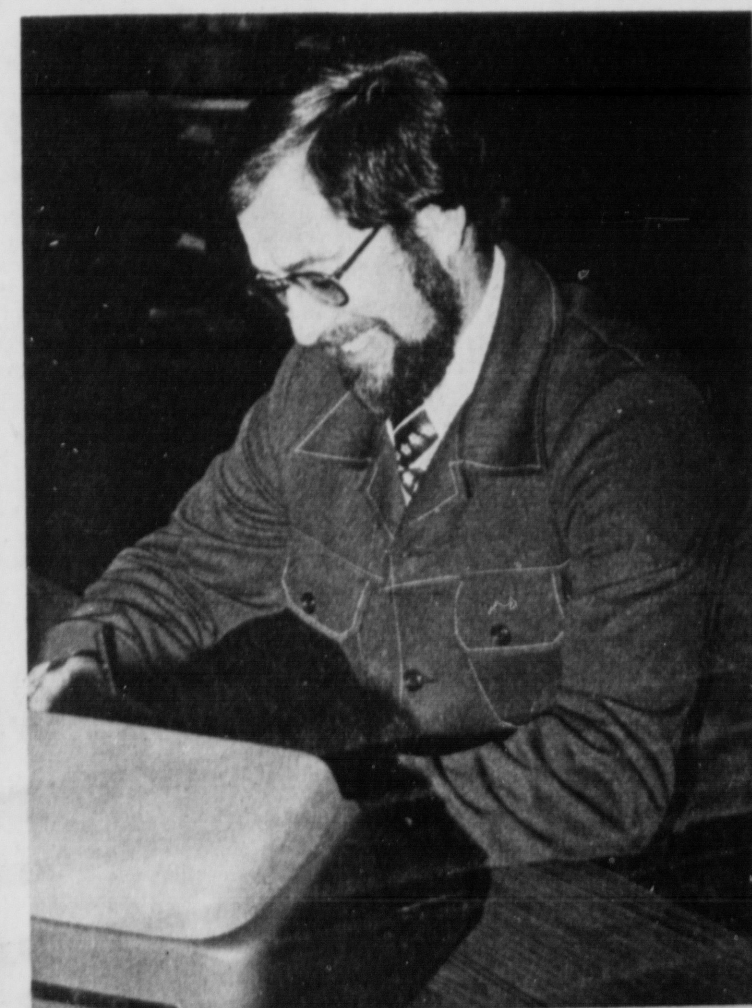

Lindberg contended that the state's financial condition had already deteriorated to a greater extent than expected by Walker when he prepared his budget request.

The comptroller estimated that Walker would begin fiscal 1976 on July 1 with $72 million less in the General Revenue Fund than he had expected. Thus, he said, without spending cuts the state could run short of enough money to pay its bills by the end of the fiscal year.

Lindberg said the situation could turn out to be even worse if Walker underestimated the amount of tax revenue the state would receive during fiscal 1976 or overestimated his administration's ability to control such things as welfare spending, which soared $200 million above budget estimates in the current fiscal year.

"The governor may find it necessary, for the first time in the history of Illinois, to exercise the new emergency borrowing power granted in the 1970 Constitution," Lindberg said.

"This could diminish the appearance of a fiscal crisis in 1976, but does nothing to stop the unfavorable trend which has been developing during the last 12 months," he said.

Boondoggle business booming

By RONALD REAGAN

Despite the economic slump of recent months, the federal "boondoggle" business is still booming.

A while back, the federal government gave a grant to some researchers to study something called "The Demography of Happiness." They wanted to find out why some people lead happier lives than others. They discovered that younger people were happier than older people. Those with money were happier than those who were broke; and healthy people were happier than ill people. The cost: $249,000. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars to find out that it's better to be young, rich and healthy than old, sick and poor!

In another case, a magazine receiving funds from the National Foundation on the Arts published a one-word poem, for which it paid the author $500. The word was "Light." That would be hilarious if it weren't for the fact that some Americans go to bed hungry or without jobs while the federal arbiters of taste hand out frivolous gifts from the public purse.

The Food and Drug Administration paid a Buffalo, N.Y., firm to study why children fall off tricycles. The research engineers made there profound conclusions: children fall off tricycles because they lose their balance or collide with an object! They also learned that children's legs grow longer as they grow older, thus complicating tricycle riding.

The purpose behind the study was to help the FDA decide if it should issue safety design standards for tricycles. If the government has any business considering such things, it should only be after someone has shown that a lot of kids are injured riding tricycles. No word of such a problem preceded the study.

The venerable Smithsonian Institution (federally funded, of course) puts in for some of the most exotic boondoggles. One shopping list it sent Congress included the following research projects: Reproductive Rhythms of Catfish in India; How Fishing Boat Crews Cause Conflicts in Yugoslavian Peasant Towns; and a study of Polish Bisexual Frogs.

Such studies may serve a larger, more serious purpose, but one can only wonder why private research sources, colleges and universities aren't taking these projects on for themselves. The frog study, for example, was intended to test some new methods of distinguishing between one species of animal and another. That seems like a legitimate objective of scientific research, but is that what we have a federal government for?

While the auto and housing industries decline, there is a relatively new cottage industry that is thriving. It takes advantage of federal boondoggles in the name of science and culture.

It consists of a small army of bright wordsmiths who will—for a fee—help prospective grantees dream up serious-sounding titles and rationale for their projects in order to impress Congress and federal agencies.

That Congress takes such stuff seriously at all is a measure of how far we have strayed from the original purposes of federal government. There are a few congressmen who battle the boondoggles, who say, in effect, "Hey, wait a minute—what business does government have paying for this? Where's the benefit to the taxpayers?" If only we had a few hundred more like them.

West Germany cheers Mayaguez rescue

BONN (LENS)—Nowhere did the rescue of the Mayaguez and its crew by American military forces get a better press than in West Germany. After the debacle in Indochina, said the Frankfurter Allgemeine, here at last was a demonstration that the main protector of Western Europe's freedom was not a paper tiger.

To such German ears, Henry Kissinger's assurance during his brief visit to Bonn and West Berlin recently that the United States stood by its commitments in the Western alliance—and, in particular, by its guarantee of the security of West Berlin—rang more convincingly after the action in the Gulf of Siam.

The pictures last month of the Americans rushing for the last helicopters out of Saigon prompted much comment in West Germany. The Germans are still extremely conscious of their front-line position and the exposed situation of West Berlin, and concerned about the lessons to be drawn for the security of Western Europe from America's military disengagement in southeast Asia.

Fears of American isolationism were reawakened, and careful note was taken of the opinion poll which showed that only 39 percent of Americans would favor military action by the United States should the Russians occupy West Berlin.

One of the leading personalities in the Christian Democratic Union, Herr Dregger, who is on the right of the party, described the tragedy of Vietnam as a defeat for the West, affecting the political and moral standing of the United States in the world. He suggested reviving the plan for a European Defense Community put forward in the early 1950s. The basis of this, he said, should be the nuclear forces of Britain and France.

Dregger's proposal, made in an atmosphere of alarm, has not apparently found support. It is considered that the establishment of a European nuclear force would presuppose the formation of a European federal state—a goal which at this stage of Europe's building hardly seems worth discussing.

Most West German politicians, especially in the government coalition, have quickly recovered from the shock caused by America's humiliation in Indochina, and now believe that the Atlantic alliance can reasonably expect to receive the closer attention of the United States.

The Social Democratic party was always careful not to criticize openly the American attempt to save South Vietnam from communism, and as a chancellor who was awarded the Nobel peace prize Willy Brandt was attacked by some members of his own party for failing to condemn American bombing of North Vietnam.

But the party, Brandt included, never approved of American policy in Southeast Asia, and felt that America's preoccupation with that problem was weakening its connection with Western Europe.

A debate in the Bundestag about the alliance showed a remarkable degree of accord between government and opposition. The government's pledge of continued support for detente took second place to its demands for strengthening the defense of the West. As foreign minister Genscher put it, the alliance would retain its purpose even after a successful conclusion of the European security conference and the negotiations to reduce forces in east and west.

Addressing, but not naming, the Russians, he said it had to be made clear that the alliance and a policy aimed at European unity were legitimate components of the West European conception of detente.

The government in Bonn takes it for granted that at the NATO summit the Americans are going to demand that their European partners make a bigger financial sacrifice to strengthen the West's defenses. It is recognized that the credibility of the American commitment will depend increasingly on the willingness of the Europeans to help themselves.

Reviewing the 30-year war

LONDON — (LENS) — Truong Chinh, the North Vietnamese strategist, once said: "Time is our best strategist." The two Indochina wars have rolled on for almost three decades, and Communist stamina has paid off.

Throughout the war's several phases, there have been two basic issues: (a) who would succeed in taking power in Vietnam after the brief Japanese takeover which broke the continuity of French colonial rule; and (b) whether Vietnam as a whole would succumb to a Communist movement that was, at the outset an instrument of Soviet policy and is still a potential support-base for insurrection elsewhere in Asia.

It was the second issue that brought the Americans, who initially had no desire to help to restore colonial rule, into the conflict.

The turning point in American attitudes probably came with the defeat of Chiang Kai-shek in China in 1949, which led President Truman to hope that Indochina would be made into part of a defensive ring around Mao Tse-tung's China.

On May 8, 1950, the American administration took the decision to give military and economic aid to France. It was paying for 78 per cent of the French war costs by 1954.

Historians still dispute the pattern of events in Indochina. But some of the turning points were these:

Sept. 2, 1945: Ho Chi Minh proclaimed the "Democratic Republic of Vietnam" in Hanoi. Nevertheless, after British and Chinese intervention, he agreed to the re-entry of French troops into Hanoi the following March.

Nov. 23, 1946: The French bombarded Vietminh positions in Haiphong, killing 6,000 people. This was the trigger for the Communist attack on the French garrison in Hanoi in December, 1946, which marked the beginning of the first Indochina war, the general one against French rule.

May 8, 1954: The fall of Dien Bien Phu, a remote stronghold near the Laotian border, and the death or capture of its 16,000 French defenders, finally shattered French morale. But it was the political effect that counted. Dien Bien Phu brought, first, the fall of the Laniel government in France and then the decision to pull out of Indochina.

July 21, 1954: The French signed the Geneva agreement, resulting in the partition of Vietnam along the 17th parallel. Since the Americans and the new government in Saigon refused to accept the final statement (which provided for a dubious election to be held in Vietnam as a whole in 1956) the outcome of the Geneva conference amounted to little more than a ceasefire arrangement.

May, 1959: The politburo in Hanoi agreed that the time had come for full-scale "armed struggle" against the Diem regime in Saigon. On Dec. 14, 1961, President Kennedy wrote to Diem to announce increased American support in response to a "campaign of force and terror" supported and directed from the outside by the authorities in Hanoi. The second Vietnam war, to decide which political system would rule South Vietnam, had begun. President Diem was killed in November, 1963, but the American military presence was built up to about 16,000 men by the time of Kennedy's death later in the same month.

August, 1964: The "Tonkin Gulf incident" resulted in reprisal bombings of North Vietnam by the Americans.

Nov. 7, 1964: The first North Vietnamese main force unit, the 808th battalion, moved into Quang Tri province in South Vietnam. It was followed on Jan. 31, 1965, by the 95th regiment of the 303rd division, which moved into Kontum.

April, 1965: The American launched major ground operations against the Communist forces in South Vietnam. In July, President Johnson approved the deployment of 44 battalions. Eventually the Americans had nearly half a million men there.

Jan. 31, 1968: The Communists launched the Tet offensive, which resulted in a traumatic psychological defeat for the Americans, but a major military setback for the attackers. The Vietcong infrastructure throughout much of the country was destroyed in the attempt to set off a "general uprising." The atrocities committed by the Communists at Hue cancelled out the propaganda value of its temporary capture. Nevertheless, under pressure from American opinion, President Johnson announced on March 31 that he would not run for reelection. A bombing halt was called in November.

March 18, 1970: The coup against Prince Sihanouk in Cambodia, resulting in the setting up of a right-wing government under Marshal Lon Nol, provided the Americans and the South Vietnamese with the opportunity to attack North Vietnamese sanctuary areas across the border in May. The effect of this was to delay the next major Communist offensive, but also to drag Cambodia into a war that it had largely managed to evade.

March 30, 1972: The beginning of the "Easter invasion." The North Vietnamese now embarked on a major conventional invasion, using massed tank formations. They were checked by the combination of American air power and South Vietnamese resistance at An Loc, and eventually pushed back in the north by a new commander, General Truong.

December, 1972: President Nixon ordered the bombing of Hanoi, during a break in the long negotiations between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho.

Jan. 27, 1973: The Paris ceasefire agreement was finally signed. It provided for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Vietnam; in practice, this applied only to the Americans. The long-term effect was to guarantee the North Vietnamese occupation of large areas in the south — the so-called "third Vietnam." The agreement permitted a one-for-one replacement of military equipment by both sides. Neither side respected the ceasefire, and the international supervisory team was largely ignored.

Jan. 7, 1975: The provincial capital of Phuoc Binh fell to the Communists at the beginning of a great eastward advance from base areas in the Central Highlands into the government-held coastal lowlands.

March 17, 1975: The South Vietnamese government conceded the fall of Ban Me Thuot and announced a withdrawal from three Central Highlands provinces. The chaotic retreat from the northern provinces, and the flight of the refugees, then began.

All economic signs point upward

WASHINGTON — (LENS) — Not many private forecasters would quarrel very much with the estimate of Alan Greenspan, the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, that the American economy will be growing again, probably at an annual rate of over 5 per cent, in the latter half of this year.

The familiar signs of an approaching bottom to this steep recession are becoming clearer. Above all companies are whittling down their stocks at the massive rate of $18 billion a year.

Lay-offs in manufacturing have begun to decline sharply and initial claims for unemployment benefits have been drifting down. Total employment stopped declining in April after dropping at a monthly average of 500,000 since October although unemployment edged up again to a postwar record of 8.9 per cent of the labor force.

The outlook is brightened by the impending injection into the economy of a substantial stimulus from the recent tax cuts. The $8 billion rebate on 1974 taxes is now starting to be mailed to taxpayers, and paychecks are also starting to reflect an additional $12 billion cut in 1975 taxes. As Morris Cohen pointed out recently,

"The economy is being stimulated by a net flow of payments from the government at an annual rate of some $50 billion, by far the largest stimulus to which the economy has ever been subjected in such a short time."

This is happening at a time when consumer spending, except for new cars, has been holding up remarkably well. Greenspan emphasizes this point. "What is impressive," he told a congressional committee early this month, "is that the collapse (in consumer demand) of late 1974 bottomed out sooner and more decisively than we had any reason to expect."

Noting that consumer incomes would soon be increased by the cuts in taxes, Greenspan said that "If final demand holds up during the second quarter — as it appears to be doing — we must anticipate another large volume of inventory liquidation" and that this "will help reduce the inventory overhang and greatly strengthen the prospects" for the latter half of the year.

Despite this happier outlook, things are not so rosy for the jobless. Judging from the past, unemployment will increase for some months even after production turns up, and it will decline only slowly unless the recovery is very rapid. The measurements of the hardships of unemployment are now showing a quite serious picture. For example, the jobless rate for married men has risen from 2.7 per cent in August to 5.6 per cent in April, and the number out of work for 15 weeks or more has mounted from 940,000 to 2.4 million in the same period.

Most of these people, of course, are collecting unemployment benefits (unlike the young, and unlike many women entering the labor force for the first time, who also swell the total of unemployment), and total incomes have held up well. The automatic stabilizers are working as they were supposed to, but this does not make life happier for the man whose job has been lost and who does not know when he will be in work again.

The recession has produced one benefit: a very substantial decline in the rate of inflation. Consumer prices rose in the first quarter of this year at an annual rate of only 6.6 per cent, in sharp contrast with the rate of 14.2 per cent as recently as the third quarter of last year. Part of this change reflects declines in farm and food prices that are not directly associated with the recession, but there has been an equally dramatic improvement in the index for industrial wholesale prices. So searing was the experience of 1973 and 1974, however, that the main emphasis of the Administration's policy is to head off a resurgence of inflation in 1976 or 1977.

Many liberal economists like Charles Schultz and Walter Heller believe that some additional stimulus beyond the tax reduction is acceptable and desirable, but the Administration disagrees strongly — equally important, so does the Federal Reserve Board.

In a precedent-breaking appearance before the Senate banking committee in response to a congressional resolution passed earlier this year, the board's chairman, Arthur Burns, has disclosed for the first time the central bank's target for growth of the money supply: between 5 per cent and 7½ per cent from last March to next March — high by historical standards, but well below the range of 8-10 per cent backed by the liberals.

Meanwhile, the stock market continues to rise exuberantly and the bond market's jittery sentiments have been improved by the disclosure that the Treasury will have to borrow in the current half year $5 billion less than it had thought because tax collections have been higher than expected.

The outlook for interest rates remains murky, but the nervousness of March and April, excited by the mammoth deficit in the federal budget, appears to have abated for the time being.

Still, despite a series of better signs, the country is not full of confidence. Already there is much talk of a revival of inflation in late 1976 or 1977, to be followed by an even worse slump. The dauntless forecasters no longer stop with the next few months, they look far down the road. From Chase Econometrics, Michael Evans reports with gloom: "In 1977 the economic situation begins to deteriorate very rapidly."

The fear still haunts William Simon, the secretary of the treasury, that large government deficits will continue well after recovery is under way and after private demand for credit is rising again, thus threatening to raise interest rates steeply and to crowd some private borrowers out. Wage inflation, not a major problem just now, looms on the horizon. In short, reassuring as the developments in the near future are likely to be, they probably will not in fact reassure.

Computer matches dogs for breeding

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (AP) — Some 150 male dogs representing 33 breeds are programmed in a computer that selects mates for them in a stud service called Date-A-Dog. Sharon Spitz, a 33-year-old former model, has built the business into a howling success in three months from her small dog-grooming and sales shop in this suburb northwest of Chicago.

"I hope eventually to have 5,000 dogs on call," she said. "I've been interested in dogs all my life — when I was just a little kid I used to entice them home from backyards. It was natural I got into the business. People would call me and say their pedigree female dog was in heat and did I know a good mate for it. Or they would call with a male they wanted to rent out for stud duties."

Ms. Spitz said that in trying to provide matings her files of available studs grew out of hand.

"I was giving this service free and three months ago I decided why not turn the whole thing over to a computer firm and let it match up ideal combinations," she said. "They charge me from $2 to $2.25 a dog. The thing has spread by word of mouth. I get mating requests from all surrounding states and as far away as Atlanta."

"Only once has the computer been wrong. It matched up two schnauzers but it was the first time for the female and she would have nothing to do with her date. She even tried to bite him."

Ms. Spitz says her fee for computerized mating is $10 a dog or $25 if she gives personal attention to shipping a stud to its mate by air or receiving a stud shipped in for local duties.

The owner charges anywhere from $50 to $300. The fee is returned if there is no litter.

"I've got orders now from owners of 15 bitches that are in heat," she said. "Timing is the most important thing. The mates are together only two or three days. That means I've got to get dates for the dogs in a hurry. While lineage is very important, we place most of our emphasis on matching temperament and disposition of the dogs."

Stud owners must answer a thorough questionnaire from which a card is prepared for computer programming. The card provides such information as size, color, pedigree registration, medical history, previous mating and litter results, number of offspring, behavior evaluation, favorite toys and food and any major faults—such as underbite or overbite.

"Then it's up to the computer to come up with the best match," she said.

The Mason-Dixon Line, probably the most widely known boundary line in the United States, was named after two famous mathematicians, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon. The two were called in from England in 1763 to help resolve a long dispute over the measurements of boundary lines separating Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. The World Almanac notes that the surveys made 200 years later proved that Mason and Dixon had determined alignments with an amazing degree of accuracy using available 18th century instruments.

Powell's shoebox estate is still in probate

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
VIENNA, Ill. (AP) — Paul Powell's shoebox estate is still shuffling through probate. Just one major step remains in the four-year-old hike toward settlement of the late secretary of state's will, but no one knows how long it will be.

Powell died Oct. 10, 1970 leaving $750,000 cash—some of it in a shoebox-stuffed in the closet of his Springfield hotel room. Authorities never could prove where it came from and the money was added to Powell's other holdings, now worth a well-heeled $1,910,384 according to recently filed court documents.

Anna attorney Ford Rendlemen, 82, in charge of legal work on the estate, says there is no telling when the loose ends will be tied up.

"Well, that's indefinite for the reason that the question of the determination of the tax to the federal government has to be settled before we know," he said. "When it is then we will be able to take some action in closing the matter."

The Internal Revenue Service wants about $2.2 million in back taxes and penalties. Rendlemen has already paid $220,000 and is trying to whittle down the rest of the IRS demand. He doesn't care to estimate how long the negotiations will take or what the final figure will be.

Illinois has received $155,000 against an inheritance tax liability to be based on the federal settlement and $100,000 from settlement of a lawsuit filed by the attorney general which claimed the state contains money gained illegally at taxpayer expense.

Rendlemen says, "The state of Illinois claimed it did have some evidence of kickbacks, which if they did, would be a just claim and we settled for $100,000." Two similar suits filed by private citizens were disallowed.

A tire company got $14,500 in a business claim. Remaining claims total "approximately 40," Rendlemen says. "Some of them that we will allow when we find that we have the money, some we will contest."

Fees for lawyers and the executor, which totaled $63,500 in 1974, will be settled. Then the provisions of the will are to be satisfied.

"What is left will be in trust at the bank in Maton for certain provisions that are left in the will," he says. Some will go to maintain Powell's home in Vienna; some to the state historical museum and state library.

Meanwhile the money has been invested in something more profitable than shoeboxes. About $1.8 million is in U.S. Treasury bills and certificates of deposit. Last year it earned $172,775.

The Doctor says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you mentioned a treatment for persons allergic to bee stings. My daughter is highly allergic, and each sting she gets a worse reaction. We have been told the only treatment is bi-weekly shots for about seven years and even then it is no assurance that they will help. Do you recommend an easier, surer procedure?

DEAR READER — I wish I could. There are probably nearly a million people who have severe reactions to bee and wasp stings each year. As many as 40 deaths occur annually. I mention this to emphasize it is not a minor matter, and you must get proper treatment for your daughter.

The most commonly available method of treatment is to give repeated injections of an extract prepared from the crushed whole bodies of stinging insects, referred to as WBE. This is really a desensitizing procedure.

A review of the success of this procedure shows that 95 per cent of patients treated this way do not have any problem with subsequent stings. But, that may often be a happy coincidence, tending more to prove that many people who have a severe reaction once will not have such a reaction a second time. In a controlled study of untreated patients, 60 per cent didn't have any serious reaction to subsequent stings, either.

Even more disquieting is the observation that some patients treated with WBE are still likely to have severe shocklike reactions with a subsequent sting. Dr. William Busse of University of Wisconsin and his associates recently published one of their cases in the Journal of the American Medical Association (March 17, 1975). The young woman was not protected by the WBE treatment. She was then treated with a purified venom from honey bees. This treatment gradually worked, and she became fully protected from the danger of honey bee stings. Similar results have been noted by scientists at the State University of New York at Buffalo and in Baltimore's Good Samaritan Hospital.

Purified venom seems to be far superior, and it can be specific for that patient's reaction. Some people are reactors to bee stings but not wasp stings and vice versa.

Unfortunately, purified venom is not available readily at present. It is expected to be produced in commercial amounts soon.

Meanwhile the best you and other people with similar problems can do is use the WBE treatment available. And, I would strongly support your doctor in recommending this treatment.

You should also take all the important precautions you can against exposing your daughter to bee stings. That means keeping flowers and shrubs down from around the house. Also, have her wear white or light colored clothing. She should avoid using scents, such as perfume and cosmetics that tend to attract bees.

You should talk to your doctor about the advisability of having a readily available sting kit. Reactions are sometimes swift and severe. Be prepared for a severe reaction ahead of time. If she gets stung, scrape the stinger out, don't pull it and squeeze more venom into her. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Fears growing over spread of nuclear technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears are mounting again that additional countries may be moving nearer membership in the nuclear weapons fraternity — the exclusive international club that now includes only six countries.

As international commerce in nuclear energy technology grows, the world continues to depend upon a fragile system of treaty and on-site inspections to avert spread of nuclear arms.

Possession of nuclear technologies — once a barrier to nations that might aspire to nuclear weapons — is no longer exclusive.

Concern is being expressed by members of Congress and government nuclear arms-control experts by these recent developments:

—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., revealed last week that France is supplying nuclear fuel-reprocessing technology and machinery to Pakistan, Taiwan and South Korea and assisting Argentina with a pilot plutonium-reprocessing plant.

—The Soviet Union has agreed to supply Libya, an Arab nation with one of the most militant anti-Israel stances, with a small nuclear reactor that apparently would be used for research.

—West Germany reportedly has agreed to sell Brazil nuclear power reactors as well as the technology to enrich uranium for nuclear fuel and reprocess the plutonium in spent fuel. The Latin American country thus could possess its own complete nuclear "fuel cycle" capability, a technology that has been largely restricted to the nations possessing nuclear arms.

"The global spread of nuclear weapons capability is on the verge of running out of control," Ribicoff said.

"... The ability to make atomic bombs will proliferate among nations in our own hemisphere and around the world unless West Germany and other nuclear allies refrain from making clearly dangerous nuclear exports," the senator said.

Fierce competition for nuclear technology exports among such countries such as the U.S., West Germany and France is part of the problem.

Standing in the way of nuclear arms spread is the Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1970, the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and international opinion.

More than 80 countries have fully ratified the treaty and more than 20 have signed it, an indication they eventually will become full parties.

As a treaty party, a nation agrees not to develop nuclear weapons and to permit inspections of its nuclear facilities to make certain no material is being diverted for possible use in a weapon.

Inspection is the job of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, which sends inspectors into countries with nuclear facilities.

The countries exporting nuclear facilities also are requiring agreements with the country receiving the equipment not to use it for military purposes.

Government sources have said, for example, that West Germany is requiring assurances from Brazil that the new nuclear technology the Germans supply will be used for peaceful purposes only and will be subject to inspection.

But the same sources are concerned about the intentions of both Brazil and Argentina. Neither country is a party to the Non-Proliferation Treaty. And they don't fully adhere to the provisions of a 1967 Latin America nuclear-free zone treaty.

Nuclear weapons now are possessed by the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China. Last year India exploded a nuclear device, but insisted its purpose was for peaceful, engineering applications. India hasn't signed the treaty.

Nuclear weapons experts agree there are at least 10 and possibly more highly industrialized countries with growing nuclear power industries who could develop atomic bombs if they chose to do so.

They include Japan, Belgium, Canada, West Germany, East Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy.

Government officials doubt that any of these countries are considering the possibility of building weapons. All of the countries have either signed the Non-Proliferation Treaty or ratified it.

Arms control officials are watching developments in South Korea, Taiwan, Pakistan, South Africa, Israel, Iran and Egypt, in addition to Brazil and Argentina. All the countries are in varying states of developing nuclear power industries.

Of these countries, Taiwan and Iran are full parties to the treaty. South Korea and Egypt have signed the treaty but not ratified it.

Pakistan hasn't signed the treaty and is unlikely to do so as long as India doesn't agree to it.

South Africa has not signed it and isn't expected to.

Israel isn't expected to treaty unless Egypt ratifies it.

The inspections that the International Atomic Energy Agency makes of nuclear facilities around the world are getting tougher and more sophisticated each year. But safeguards experts concede there still is the possibility of diversion of nuclear material.

If a developing nation is determined to build weapons, the more likely approach is to use the peaceful, imported nuclear technology as intended. Then, after a sufficient number of native nuclear technicians have been trained, move them into a fledgling weapons program.

In the end, U.S. arms-control experts say international opinion might be as effective a deterrent as any.

Countries that have ratified the Non-Proliferation Treaty still have an escape clause that allows them to withdraw if extraordinary events threaten their national security.

They also could renege on an agreement with a country that had sold them nuclear technology.

People in the news

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Russell Means, the American Indian Movement leader, is recovering after being shot in the abdomen during a scuffle with a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman.

The BIA said Sunday that the shooting was accidental. But Means, in satisfactory condition at a hospital here, said the BIA's entire account was in error.

The BIA said Means was wounded Saturday when the pistol of Lt. Pat Kelly, 45, accidentally discharged during a scuffle involving Means, other AIM members and Kelly near here. The BIA said Means had been sought earlier in connection with an incident at a Fort Rice tavern.

Means, however, said the man who shot him was not Kelly at all, but Kelly's son.

Means was a leader of American Indians who took and held the town of Wounded Knee, S.D., for 71 days to protest their position in society. Federal charges against him in that occupation were dismissed after a trial. He is now free on $30,000 bond on a charge of being an accomplice in the murder of a South Dakota man who was shot in a bar March 1.

LONDON (AP) — The widow of British movie star Laurence Harvey says Elizabeth Taylor often has the subject of death on her mind.

"It seems to be her favorite subject after diamonds," Pauline Stone quoted her husband as saying of Miss Taylor. "She knows more about suffering than Charles Dickens and St. Augustine put together."

The quote was contained in Miss Stone's book published today: "One Tear is Enough: My Life with Laurence Harvey."

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Alfred E. Smith, great-grandson and namesake of the Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, has married Nan J. Moore of Northbrook in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Alfred E. Smith.

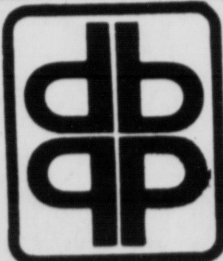

The minister is a grandson of the one-time governor of New York who lost to Herbert Hoover, and an uncle to the bridegroom. The ceremony was Saturday.

Different Banana Salad

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Casual cookouts are in full swing for the summer months. Everyone invited to bring a covered dish to a barbecue likes to take something special that will draw raves. One such will be a different banana salad. Too often we lock in ideas about how to serve or mix certain vegetables and fruits. This salad tastefully illustrates that old rules are meant to be broken — or is that eaten? It also is a quickie dish to prepare for unexpected drop-ins and refreshing to eat on hot days.

DIFFERENT BANANA SALAD

4 cups torn salad greens (spinach, chicory, escarole, lettuce)
1/2 cup pitted ripe olives (sliced or whole)
1/2 cup fresh grapefruit sections
1/2 cup halved or whole cherry tomatoes
2 bananas, sliced
In large bowl combine salad greens, olives and grapefruit sections. Peel bananas, cut into slices and add with French dressing. Toss lightly to mix well and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

(Well drained canned or chilled grapefruit sections may be used.)

FRENCH DRESSING
1/4 cup salad oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons vinegar
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf basil
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
In small bowl, combine all ingredients. Stir vigorously or beat to mix well. (If desired, use 1-3rd cup prepared French or Italian dressing.)

Let's Talk About Decorating

By BEVERLEY CAPON

Choosing That Chair

I've found that there's a common mistake often made by people who are purchasing furniture for their living room. They spend hours, sometimes days, selecting their living room sofa, then they hastily choose the chair or chairs without much thought at all. Today, let's talk about selecting those all important chairs.

Remember that chairs are for sitting. When you come into our showroom, sit on the chairs and test them for comfort. Don't make your selection according to design alone. Check the slope of the seat, the tilt of the back. If you'll have to put pillows behind you to make the chair comfortable, then it's not the one for you.

The simple designs of Modern chairs are popular because they fit well into the smaller rooms of today's homes and they coordinate well with other furnishings. The more traditionally designed overstuffed chairs and recliners are still big sellers because they provide lots of roominess and comfort.

Whether you're selecting one chair or redecorating an entire room be sure to shop at Dunbar's. We have a marvelous selection of furnishings within your budget of course. Come check this out today and see for yourself — glad to have you.

Dear ANN: by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I returned to my place of business to clean up some paperwork. I finished about 10 p.m. and headed for the parking lot behind our building. I thought I saw someone sitting in my car but wasn't certain. When I opened the door I was shocked to find a young woman, about 22, either dead drunk or spaced-out on drugs. She said, "Drive me home or I'll scream that you tried to rape me."

I decided to do as she asked because I didn't know if she had a gun or what she might do. She lived about five miles away. The whole time she talked about how she has messed up her head with booze and drugs and how rotten she had treated her parents and so on. At times she made a lot of sense, then she'd go way off the beam. When we reached the block where she lived, she said, "Drop me at the corner. I don't want to get you into trouble. My husband might be waiting. Thanks. You're O.K."

When I reached home I was shaking. My wife was furious. She said I was a damned fool for driving that woman home. She claims I should have thrown her out of the car and run for the police. Do you agree? — Scared Stiff

Dear S.S.: Your first mistake was leaving your car unlocked. This time it was a woman on booze or drugs. Next time it could be a maniac with a Saturday night special or a piece of iron pipe.

Your second mistake was opening the car door when you suspected someone was sitting there. You should have turned around and gotten a policeman that very moment.

Dear Ann Landers: I almost broke out in tears when I read that letter from the 19-year-old babe who loved humanity so much she couldn't say no to a guy.

She claimed her contribution to a world full of misery was "love" and that she felt great joy whenever she accommodated a homely and inept jerk because they get turned down so much and are so grateful.

I happen to be a homely, inept jerk who has been turned down so many times I feel like an army blanket. Will you please send me the name and address of that beautiful person so I can avail myself of her humanitarian services? I want to help her feel better. — It's Been A Long, Long Time

Dear Jerk: You wouldn't believe the number of generous men in this world who are eager to be of service to a woman with such a giving nature. It pains me deeply that I must decline your magnanimous offer.

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle a family fight. I am writing because I'm the oldest. There are six children in our family — all grown. I am 35.

Dad passed away seven months ago. Yesterday Mom became very upset because none of her children remembered her wedding anniversary. We didn't actually forget, Ann, we talked it over and decided it would be best to let the day pass with no mention. Mom and Dad celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary last year and we gave them a big party. We felt the contrast this year would be depressing.

Were we wrong to ignore the day now that Dad is gone? What is your verdict? — Split Down The Middle

Dear Split: It would have been thoughtful had someone (or all of you) taken your mother out for dinner on the "anniversary" evening. No mention need have been made of the occasion but you should not have left her alone.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South made a really fine decision when he took out his partner's double of four spades. Correct defense would beat that four-spade contract, but if South tried to cash two heart tricks he would have been mighty sorry.

West led out his three top spades against the five-heart contract, while East discarded the jack and then the deuce of clubs. Now South led out four or five rounds of trumps while looking intently at each enemy discard.

Then he paused to think about which minor suit finesse to take, finally tried the diamond and was one trick down.

South felt that he had gone wrong when faced by an absolutely even guess. Actually South had made a bad play and paid for it.

South had overlooked that one extra chance. Sometimes a king will drop singleton or doubleton. South could lead a club to dummy's ace and ruff a low club. Sure enough the king would drop and there would be no need to try the diamond finesses.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-680: Jerry P., aged 12, is a bright youngster.

"But, Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "we are struggling to live on a limited income."

"So we can't indulge Jerry with a liberal allowance, as many richer parents do."

"And we can't afford to pay him very often, even for useful chores which he performs for us."

"Yet we realize he needs to have some spending money of his own, so how can we make that possible for Jerry?"

Pay Jobs

Jerry's mother deserves praise for avoiding the very un-American custom of giving children a cash "allowance."

For youngsters should learn the rules of this world, where you must earn your way through life, instead of waiting for the "dole."

When you can afford it, thus pay your children on the piece-work method, as for mowing the lawn, washing the car, shining daddy's shoes, washing windows at maybe five cents or ten cents per window, etc.

But another method that whets his skill in arithmetic and also makes him far more attentive to the advertisements in this newspaper, is as follows:

Let your child do your grocery shopping and pay him the difference in price between the groceries sold by the local grocery vs. the bargain prices listed by the supermarkets in the daily newspaper.

The usual neighborhood grocery must charge more per item since its volume of sales is less and it buys in smaller lots.

Thus, Jerry may be able to make five cents per loaf on bread by going 10 or 12 blocks farther to a super mart.

Or seven cents per pound on coffee, sugar or other staple items.

Moreover, on late Saturday afternoon, when the grocer doesn't wish to carry his overly ripe bananas or vegetables over till Monday, because of their spoilage, the store may cut the price significantly.

Furthermore, many stores will lower their retail price on some single item as a "leader" or attention-getter to bring in new customers.

So Jerry will soon become a shrewd shopper by noticing a real bargain at one store on a certain item and also similar bargains at other stores.

Not only does Jerry thus earn his own spending money without any greater outlay of cash from his parents.

But he begins to view the grocery ads with as much zest as the comic page!

And he also becomes expert on grocery prices all over his neighborhood!

His pen-and-pencil computation of profits on various items, likewise stimulates his skill in arithmetic!

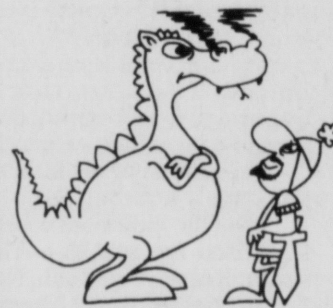

Mrs. Crane and I used all these various methods I outline in this column, to whet the wits and also let our own five Crane youngsters earn their own money.

As a result, they are all self-reliant bargain hunters and arch foes of the "dole" psychology that not only ruined the once virile Roman Republic, but is now causing dry rot in our Republic!

So send for my booklet on "20 Ways Children Can Earn Spending Money," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Kidnap hearing set

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — A preliminary hearing has been set for June 17 for Ralph L. Doughty, the man police say abducted 7-year-old Heather Bailey.

The Bailey girl, daughter of a Rock Island Board of Education member, was found unharmed in Doughty's apartment about four hours after being abducted Sunday evening, police said. She had been seen by area residents.

Police arrested Doughty, 29, in the building. Charged with aggravated kidnaping, he was being held on $100,000 bond.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey, was whisked away by a man while playing near her home with her brother and another boy.

Police said her abductor separated her from her playmates by telling them to search for his daughter, who he claimed was lost.

$200 boost for Feed the Children

Canoe races planned as Festival event

The third Annual Petunia Festival Canoe Race is scheduled for July 4, beginning at 1 p.m. It is being organized by Troop 35 of the Boy Scouts of America. Co-chairmen are Greg Brooks and Russell Spratt.

The 13-mile race will get under way in the area of the Grand Detour bridge with the official finish line established just west of the Peoria Avenue bridge. Contestants will be required to portage the power dam on the north bank of the river.

The Petunia Festival Canoe Race is open to all age groups, both male and female. Single-blade paddles are the only means of propulsion allowed for canoes, and double-blade paddles only for kayaks. The race is not open to covered canoes.

Entry forms and contest rules are available from the chairmen or at festival headquarters located in the Chamber of Commerce building. Although entries will be accepted the day of the race, pre-registration is desired in order that various divisions and assignments may be established in advance of the July 4 starting time. Approximately 50 engraved trophies will be awarded to winners in a wide range of division races.

Committee to oversee CIA to be created

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a joint congressional committee to oversee the Central Intelligence Agency is among the 30 recommendations made by the Rockefeller Commission to prevent future wrongdoing by the agency, according to authoritative sources.

In addition to a congressional panel modeled after the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, the commission headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller calls for the establishment of a separate oversight organization within the executive branch, the informed sources said.

President Ford told a nationally broadcast news conference Monday night that the commission report on CIA domestic activities would be made public today but that evidence dealing with alleged assassination plots against foreign leaders would be kept secret.

Evidence on assassination will be turned over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution and to both the Senate and House intelligence committees, Ford said.

"There's not going to be any possibility of a cover-up," the President added.

Allegations about assassination plots date back to the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, according to one White House official.

Ford said that "under no circumstances do I want to sit in 1975 passing judgments made by honorable people 15 or more years ago under unusual circumstances. I think it is better to let history tell the story" of the alleged plots.

The alleged plots have been said to include plans to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, said after the news conference that "it is obvious that the Senate committee will have to deal with the assassination issue."

Robert A. Maheu, a former aide to billionaire Howard Hughes, appeared before the Senate panel Monday but he invoked the Fifth Amendment. A committee spokesman indicated the panel has tentatively decided to grant Maheu immunity in return for testimony on alleged links between the CIA

In other action, the board voted to retain the law firm of Ward, Ward, Castendyck and Pace, Sterling, as legal consultants for the Ashton School District.

ed by the use of ripped-off and blackmail, there is no place here for such language; the matter should have been settled on issues."

The afternoon session started off in a questioning mood when it was demanded by Burke an explanation be given about the settlement with Frank Thornber Co. on the cancellation of the purchase contract for voting machines.

Koch explained the parties had verbally agreed to settle during a telephone conversation from the state's attorney's office.

He said the $19,588.80 which the county agreed to pay is $451.80 less than the original amount asked by the company.

Norden told the board the purchasers of the Nursing Home project at Eldena want a three to six months extension on making the next payment on the principal.

He said the principal payment, $36,683, is due Thursday and the Finance Committee has agreed to extend this time to Oct. 1. Norden reported the purchasers will pay the $7,603 interest payment due this week.

Discussion about this brought out the fact there is a question whether the purchaser has insurance on the property.

Arthur O. Erickson, District 2, recalled after the storm last June the purchaser tried to collect storm damage from the county.

Burke observed "The county should have a copy of the insurance policy for this property."

Farber rejoined, "And the county should be the beneficiary."

It was agreed to determine if the purchaser has insurance on the property.

The property was sold for $155,000 on a three-year contract with 7 per cent interest.

The County Services Committee recommended the county not accept property offered by the Government Service Administration in the GROF.

Chairman William Kant, District 1, explained there are 111 acres of blacktop roads and 21 buildings, and said the committee does not know what use the county can make of them.

On a motion by Beggs, District 1, the recommendation was defeated and the board voted to inquire further into the matter.

Francis Ege, District 2, a committee member, defended the committee stance, declaring "The cost to rehabilitate this property into something the county can use would be prohibitive."

Finally Paul Hamersmith, District 3, asked, "What is the duty of the state's attorney in relation to this board? Is he our agent and can we direct or order him to bring matters to conclusion, or can he act on his own judgment?"

No one answered him, except Koch, who said "Go ask the state's attorney."

How the members voted whether to settle with Lowell L. Wilson for $422.65 — YES: Erickson, Frazza, Hamersmith, Kesselring, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Smith, Balser, Beggs, Burrs, Conroy, Considine, Dunphy, 15. NO: Ege, Faber, Gittleton, Green, Henning, Kant, Sexton, Burke, 8.

Absent: Allen, Gusse, Huffman, McReynolds, Topper.

Governors vote to ask for share of gasoline tax

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The nation's governors voted today to ask Congress for a share of any revenues if gas taxes are increased.

The governors voted 27-6 to support an amendment expected to be offered in the House later today. It would permit states to pre-empt one cent of a proposed three-cent gas tax rise and 20 per cent of any later increases.

The resolution, however, takes no position on either the proposal to increase gas taxes or President Ford's plan to cut energy consumption by increased import tariffs.

Outnumbered Republican governors, who succeeded in keeping the conference from taking up energy questions Monday, insisted today's resolution be limited to the question of giving states a share of any new revenues.

On Monday political questions — particularly George Wallace's presidential bid — kept stealing focus from the conference's other business.

Wallace said he believes the Democratic leadership when it says there is no organized party effort to stop him from capturing the party's presidential nomination. However, the list of Wallace debunkers kept growing.

Gov. Bill Waller of Mississippi told the conference the Alabama governor should not even be in the race.

Hurt as cycle tire blows out

Samuel L. Thomas, 44, Franklin Grove, was treated and released from KSB Hospital after a motorcycle accident Sunday.

Thomas was riding on Ill. 38 near Mt. Union Road when his rear tire blew out. He lost control and skidded off the road. He was ticketed for violation of classification.

Fred Thomas, East Peoria, a passenger, also received minor injuries.

Pays $35 fine for petty theft

Brad D. Boyungs, 19, 837 E. Graham St., was fined $35 Monday in circuit court for petty theft.

Boyungs was charged with taking furniture from Caroline Bott, whose apartment he had been renting.

He was arrested by Dixon police on April 23.

Grand Jury bill is sent to governor

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The first bill in a legislative package designed to reform the grand jury system in Illinois has been approved by the General Assembly and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature.

The Senate approved 39 to 1 Monday the House-passed measure which provides that a person charged with a crime or who is a target of 3 grand jury investigation can have an attorney with him in the grand jury room.

Sponsors say the current law requires that an attorney remain outside the door of the grand jury room, where proceedings are supposed to be kept secret. Under the new measure, the attorney could give his client advice but could not participate in the proceedings.

Another House-passed bill in the package at the final passage stage in the Senate would extend the same right to counsel to all witnesses called to testify before the grand jury.

Both houses of the General Assembly met Monday, but most of the day was set aside for committee hearings.

The House approved a measure to require the state Department of Transportation to submit earlier than the current dates its yearly plans for highway construction.

The bill, sent to the governor, was viewed by supporters as an attempt to make the administration spell out its highway plans while the General Assembly still is in session and in a position to review them. The current reporting date for highway plans is June 30.

Also passed in the House and sent to the governor was a bill to allow counties after a referendum to impose a tax to support operations of the sheriff's department.

The Senate also approved a bill designed to encourage the use of solar heating and cooling systems in homes. The measure, which had passed the House but was returned there for approval of a Senate amendment, set up an apparatus to provide property tax incentives for the use of solar systems.

Also approved in the Senate was a measure designating the third Sunday in August as a day to honor senior citizens. The House had passed the bill with the date as the second Sunday in October. The measure was returned to the House for its approval of the August date.

On another matter, a controversial bill granting public employees the right to bargain collectively and giving many of them the right to strike may be in trouble in the Senate.

The measure, which passed the House earlier this year, was assigned to a subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee.

The subcommittee is considering several collective bargaining bills.

Asked whether the action meant the bill was dead for the session, a subcommittee member, Sen. Robert McCarthy, D-Decatur, said "Let's just say it's not as alive as it would be on the floor."

Meanwhile, the Senate Executive Committee approved a bill setting up a 15-member Delinquency Prevention Commission, which would take over some juvenile duties now performed by the Departments of Correction and Law Enforcement.

The House passed bills which were sent to the Senate for approval of amendments which would:

—Cut in half the admission charge for persons over 62 who produce proper identification at state-run camping facilities.

—Exempt employees and employers from civil liability if they administer in good faith first aid to an injured worker.

—Require state and county officials to cooperate in getting information to owners of animals who are found killed on the highway.

Lions Clubs unite to present bus to Dixon Park District

After several months of searching for a community project which would be beneficial to many people and in keeping with the Lions Club motto "We Serve," the Dixon Lions Clubs presented a 1973 van-bus to the Dixon Park District Saturday.

The orange van with blue lettering and the International Lions emblem on the door, will become a familiar sight to Dixonites, says Rich Sedowski, Superintendent of recreation, as the expanded park programs go into operation for the summer keeping the van on the move around town.

The van will be used partially to transport equipment and gear to mini parks that will be set up on a regular schedule in areas of town where there are no neighborhood parks. Ralph Contreras, park board president, in accepting the van on behalf of the park board expressed the appreciation of the board and said, "We have thought of this for a long time but just never had the funds available to purchase a van. It will be a big boost for the Dixon park program." He further said, "We are trying to put our money into good recreation programs for our people instead of spending it all on trucks and mowers. This van will help us further that policy."

Walter Kevern, Dixon Noon Lions president, in making the presentation told Contreras that much thought had gone into the decision to purchase the van and that the two Lions Clubs, Dixon Noon and Dixon Evening, had joined forces at the request of project chairman, Dave Harris to make the purchase possible. "Community service projects as well as activities to aid the blind and visually handicapped are part of the heritage of local Lions Clubs and Lions International, the largest service club in the world. Our local clubs are proud to say "thank you to Dixonites who continually support our various projects which have made the purchase of this van possible." Larry Moats of the Evening Lions joined Kevern in dedicating Lions efforts to future local programs and continuing to be strong force in community improvement programs.

Project chairman Dave Harris expressed delight at acceptance of this project by both clubs and said, "We want people to be aware of our activities and to know that when they buy a broom, a fruit cake or a dozen roses from a Lions member that the profits will be put to good use by a group of dedicated men who have real concern for the needs of people world wide." He told Contreras, "Our clubs are proud of Dixon parks and proud of the way you and your board serve the youth and all people of Dixon. Perhaps this van can express our appreciation to the people who have served on the board over the years and let you know that the Lions do notice and appreciate the long hours and hard work as we are sure all the people of Dixon do. We know you will continue to make improvements in the park program and we look forward to working with the district in the future."

The van will be put into service immediately.

One dead, another survives

HONEY BEND, Ill. (AP) — A Montgomery County man died of apparent suffocation when a sewer line excavation collapsed, but his body saved a young companion's life.

Buried more than one and a half hours under more than 10 feet of dirt, Joseph F. Whitworth, 54, was dead when his body was pulled out Monday evening, said Coroner James Warden.

But Tim Hendrickson, 17, of Litchfield, was still conscious and suffered only minor injury, Warden said.

"Whitmore's body was over his...and it sort of gave the boy an air pocket to breathe in, we figure," Warden said. The youth was kept overnight in a Litchfield hospital for observation.

Whitworth was part owner of Camp Jo Mo Co, the trailer park resort where the accident occurred. Warden said Whitworth and the boy were working in the 14-foot deep hole when its walls caved in.

Tim's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Hendrickson, run a tavern at Jo Mo Co, located in unincorporated Honey Bend, near Litchfield.

Prisoner flees from hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — A Joliet State Prison inmate receiving medical treatment for a kidney ailment has escaped from the University of Illinois Hospital in Chicago, officials say.

Authorities Monday identified the escapee as Frank Cooke, 30.

Police said Cooke was serving time on a murder conviction.

Senior Party Line

All persons receiving Social Security were supposed to get a $50 payment from the federal government in addition to an income tax rebate. Can you tell me how soon these payments will be sent?—R.B.

Dear Mr. B:

The $50 one-time payments should all be sent out by June 20, according to Social Security Administration officials. These payments are being made not only to Social Security beneficiaries but also to those who receive Railroad Retirement and Supplemental Security Income. If you do not receive the check by June 25, visit or phone your local Social Security office. This "bonus" payment will not have to be reported as income on your 1975 federal income tax return.

When the 8 per cent increase in Social Security and Supplemental Security Income takes effect this summer, will more people become eligible for SSI?—J.G.

Dear Mrs. G:

Yes—more people should become eligible for this income maintenance program for the aged, blind and disabled. The current maximum payments are $146 a month for individuals and $219 for couples. Because the federal government does not count the first $20 of income in determining eligibility, individuals with up to $166 a month in income and couples with up to $239 could apply.

Now the eligibility standards are being broadened. The new maximum monthly payments will be $157.70 for individuals and $236.60 for couples. Again, because the first $20 of income is not counted, individuals with monthly income of up to $177.70 and couples with incomes of up to $256.60 should apply for SSI through the local Social Security office. Those figures apply to persons living in their own homes or apartments. For those living in the household of another, the eligibility limits are $115.14 for individuals and $177.74 for couples.

What is the Illinois Council on Aging? What are its functions, and how can I get in touch with this organization?—B.B.

Dear Mrs. B:

The Council on Aging was created in 1973 at the same time as the Department on Aging. It has 31 members—eight members of the General Assembly and 23 citizens who are appointed. At least 16 of the 23 citizens must be seniors (55 or older), giving them a majority of the council membership.

The council's official task is to act as the "people's voice" in the planning and direction of senior programs in Illinois. Its membership represents all geographic areas of the state. Members of the state council also serve on the advisory boards to the Area Agency on Aging in their locality. The council is charged with surveying all programs for the elderly in Illinois and commenting on their effectiveness to the legislature and the governor. The council also must approve the annual plans for each Area Agency which indicate how available funds will be spent on social services for the aging. The chairman of the council is Marshall Holleb of Chicago and the vice chairman is Kenneth Johnston of Peoria. There should be a member of members of the council in your part of the state. Contact them through the nearest Area Agency on Aging or write the Department on Aging, 2401 W. Jefferson, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

The legislation establishing the Department on Aging also created a Technical Advisory Committee with the Lt. Governor as chairman and 13 department directors as members. The TAC's role is to bring about better coordination of local, state and federal programs for seniors and to shape an effective, comprehensive policy for the aged to avoid duplication of effort. If you have concerns about the administration of senior programs in Illinois, call the Senior Action Hotline.

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline, 800-252-6565, with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging, 288-2117.

Patent available on protective farm device

Deere & Company and Hayes-Dana Corporation have announced they are making available to other manufacturers, without charge, their patents on a new protective device that reduces the risk of farm accidents involving power take-offs.

The two companies said the action was being taken in the interest of farm safety and in the hope it would lead to increased usage of the new safety protection.

This was the second time Deere has made available free to other manufacturers its patents on a major safety development. Deere, which pioneered in the development of overturn protection on farm tractors, several years ago made its patents on the roll frame protection available to other manufacturers without charge.

The new PTO protection completely encloses the universal joint and PTO coupler with free-spinning shielding to prevent a farmer's clothing from becoming entangled should he attempt to operate PTO-driven equipment without having the master PTO shield on his tractor in place. Other portions of the PTO drive shaft already have been enclosed with free-spinning shielding.

With this new coupler a farmer can attach and detach PTO-driven equipment without removing the master PTO shield from the tractor. This reduces the chances a farmer will forget to replace the shield. The master shield on the tractor guards against a farmer becoming entangled with the PTO stub shaft should he accidentally engage the PTO when not working with PTO-driven equipment.

Both Deere and Hayes-Dana hold patents on the new protection device. Hayes-Dana, Ltd. is a subsidiary of Dana Corporation of Toledo, Ohio.

From scarcity to surplus

A new outlook on the soybean market

By L. H. SIMERL
Extension Economist

The soybean outlook has changed from scarcity to surplus in recent months. Last fall there were some forecasts that soybean mills would have to close for lack of soybeans, and that prices would rise to $10 or $12 a bushel. But prices never got to $10, and there is a prospective carryover of as much as 200 million bushels.

Why the drastic change? Hindsight shows how the soybean situation changed, and forethought may help farmers make future marketing plans.

The U.S. soybean supply appeared to be short last fall. At 1,404 million bushels, it was nearly 100 million bushels less than the amount used during the previous year. Furthermore, the sunflowerseed crops in Eastern Europe and Russia and the peanut crop in India were also short.

Largely as a result of these shortfalls, the world production of oilseed meals decreased about four per cent this year, instead of increasing the usual two per cent. Also, the world output of oils and fats shrunk one per cent, instead of increasing the usual one per cent. While those shortages may seem small, the demands for these products are highly inelastic; that is, small changes in supplies produce large swings in prices. In this case, the relatively short supplies of soybean meal, oil, and competing products caused prices to rise sharply.

However, offsetting developments occurred later. Because of the shortage of feed grains, less protein supplement was needed to balance the rations for hogs, poultry, and other animals. Also, U.S. soybeans are meeting increasing competition from Brazilian beans and Peruvian fish meal.

Export shipments and the domestic use of soybeans have decreased sharply. The carryover of old soybeans on September 1 now seems likely to be 175 to 200 million bushels. That would be three times as much as last fall, and equal to seven or eight weeks' requirements.

Now there are two key questions: Who will want to own and hold nearly 200 million bushels of old soybeans? And at what price? Some farmers will hold indefinitely, but most will sell to clear their storage space, to stop storage charges, or to get money to pay bills. Processors, exporters, and speculators may not want to buy and hold large amounts at recent prices. They may expect to obtain new beans for less money.
